

THE EVENING CRITIC.
ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1869.

AMUSEMENTS.

National Theatre.
Miss Jennie Lee, the popular actress, opens with an excellent temper in "Jo," the title role. Miss Lee is regarded in this character as one of the most finished actresses on the stage. The character blends paths with humor, and this dramatization of the "Black House" is regarded by many as more interesting than "Cheney's World." Miss Lee's support is of a high order, and it is eminently certain that this week's engagement will be a success.

Ford's Opera-House.
Mr. Harry Ford opens the Opera-house for the season this evening with the New York novelty of "Rooms for Rent." This is a perfectly fresh, original comedy, of a light style, and is said to possess exquisite humor. The company consists of a polished class of actors, and is in all respects capable of rendering the piece.

Theatre Comique.
The Theatre Comique continues in an uninterrupted course of success. This week its attractions are especially strong. In addition to the specialty stars, the Four Emeralds, Maas and Drew, Thatcher and Hume, Pollie Dale and Charles Shaffer, the popular actor, Sid C. France, appears in his thrilling drama of "Dead to the World." The amount of amusement should take in the Comique.

Abner's Summer Garden.
This week is to be characterized of attraction at Abner's popular summer garden. To-morrow evening the famous Teller's Vienna Ladies' Orchestra open for the week. This famous combination is one of the finest in the country and creates an every point of view. In another column will be found the card of Mr. Abner with full details.

THE COURTS.

CRIMINAL COURT.—The June term of the Criminal Court was resumed this morning. Both the grand and petit jurors were present. In the case of John Belloni charged with carrying on the business of a retail dealer in liquor without having paid the special tax therefor, a nolle proes was entered. The grand and petit jurors were then discharged until to-morrow at 10 a. m.

EQUITY COURT.—To-day—Bacon vs. Cox et al.; pro confesso against G. G. Cox. De Hart vs. De Hart; reference to A. C. Bradley to take testimony. Wright vs. Walter Murphy vs. Murray, and Central National Bank vs. Guinand; auditor's report ratified. Middleton vs. Perry; W. S. Perry appointed trustee. Magruder vs. Suit; pro confesso, against defendant and reference to Hanley, examiner. Purdy vs. Young; sale ratified. Heck vs. Heck; sale ratified finally and cause referred to auditor. Johnston vs. District of Columbia; absent defendant ordered to appear and answer. Williams vs. Williams; sale ordered and W. T. Bailey and J. A. Clarke appointed trustees. Kelly vs. Kelly; do. and Guy H. Thompson and P. J. Donohue appointed trustees. H. J. Dykes vs. Dykes; rule on defendant returnable September 19 ordered. Fenwick vs. National Fair Association; pro confesso against defendant ordered. Walter vs. Krentler; sale ordered and Charles Walter appointed trustee. Stratton vs. Nicholson; residue of property ordered sold. Stewart vs. Lord; reference to auditor ordered. Welch vs. Welch; testimony ordered taken before J. A. Clarke, examiner.

Another Crank.
A white man, named Tobias Simpson, went to the Baltimore and Potomac depot last night, and in a loud voice announced himself to be President of the United States. He was requested to pass on by Officers Kearns and Burns, but he refused to do so, and burst forth in a torrent of profanity which caused his arrest by the officers. He fought the officers all the way to Headquarters, where he was locked up. In the Police Court to-day he was fined $5 or seven days. The man is evidently of unsound mind.

The Storm Down the River.
The rain and wind-storm was very severe down the river last evening, and the small boats were tossed about in a dangerous extent. One containing Charles and Edward Eckloff was upset near the Arsenal and the boys would have been drowned if friends had not gone to their rescue on a raft from the shore. A number of small boats were driven up on the Maryland shore and some badly injured. The steamers Corcoran, Excelsior and the Washington were all out during the storm.

"Aldermen Dairy Wagons."
Fresh Aldermen butter, churned every morning and delivered in "Ward" prints, at 35c. per lb. Also, cottage cheese, 5c. per lb.; buttermilk, 5c. per quart, and sweet milk, 5c. per quart.

Handsome Done.
Lawyer John A. Clark was presented with a handsome and massive gold watch, chain and seal on Saturday by Charles A. Walter and Justice Walter in appreciation of the services of Mr. Clark, who took sole charge of Justice Walter's office during last week when Justice Walter was absent in New York to meet his son, who had just returned on the steamer Nuremberg from a European tour.

Fall Styles Now Ready.
At A. L. Hazelton's, 423 Seventh street, his stock of boots, shoes, hats, gaiters, mitts, and children's large and good-looking, durable, fine button boots for ladies a specialty.

The Barroto Monument.
The handsome Italian marble cross, resting on a large granite base, that has been erected in Mount Olivet Cemetery as a memorial to the late Father Felix Barroto, was yesterday unveiled and dedicated in the presence of about five thousand people. Magnificent singing by the St. Augustine choir, with address by Fathers Boyle and Slattery, were among the most impressive ceremonies. The Knights of St. Augustine made a fine display and appeared in full dress.

Liquors and Cigars.
that can be always be secured at Jas. Tharp's, 518 F street, at reasonable prices.

A fierce attack of the fever and ague is thus described by a Jerseyman, a neighbor of the victim:
"And it shook him, shook him sorely; shook his teeth off and his hair off; shook his coat all into tatters; shook his shirt all into shreds; shook his shirtless, cold, hairless, toothless, minus boots and minus toe-nails; still it shook him, shook him to the bone; made him yellow, gaunt and bony; shook him till he reached his death-bed; shook him till he shook him to the bone; off his mortal coil, and then it.
Having laid him cold and quiet, shook the earth all down upon him; and he lies beneath his grave-stone, ever shaking, shaking, shaking."

A beauty of singular lustre, Persuaded a merchant to truste.
"Will you pay?" were his words,
"You know I'm a staunch Red-tail!"
—Senator Mahone.

There once was a man named McGee,
Who was down with the cholerae.
His wife, with a sigh,
Said: "I fear you will die!"
He mournfully answered, "McGee!"
—Ex-Senator Platt.

There was a young woman of Gloucester
Whose husband declared that he loathed her;
And he lies beneath his grave-stone,
He really is quite an impostor.

THE AVENGER

ON THE TRACK OF THE ASSASSIN.

Gutten Shot at by a Soldier—The Ball Misses its Mark—Terror of the Wretched Assassin—His Conscience a Hell.

The city was thrown into a state of excitement again last night by a rumor from the jail that Gutten had been shot. This turned out not to be true, but no one would have wept if it had been. A shot had been fired at him, but the wretch was unharmed. The facts, told briefly, are these: About 7 o'clock last night at Sergeant John A. Mason, of Company B, Second Artillery, which is doing guard duty at the jail, went with a number of soldiers to relieve guard. He stopped a few feet away from the window on the outside looking into Gutten's cell, leveled his rifle.

Took Deliberate Aim and Fired.
The ball crashed through the outside window, then through the window of Gutten's cell, passing within a few inches of the head of the wretch, through his coat hanging on the wall and imbedding itself in the wall, creating the greatest excitement at the jail.

What Mason Did.
Mason, after firing the shot, quietly surrendered himself to his commanding officer, Capt. McGilvray, and was sent back to the Arsenal under guard. Mason was under the influence of liquor, but he explained that by saying this had been sick. He said that he had been meditating the act for some days and was sorry that he had failed in killing the wretch.

All Sorts of Stories.
concerning the affair spread over the city last night, one being that the shooting was the result of a plot among a certain number of soldiers; that neither caring to assume the responsibility, the matter was settled by throwing dice, the duty falling upon Mason, who carried it into execution. Mason is a man about 38 years of age, a native of Virginia. He is one of six brothers, five of whom served in the Confederate army during the late war. He enlisted in the United States service about fifteen years ago. He is a spare man, six feet high, large of bone and muscular. His own explanation he gave to a reporter last night in the following language:

Mason's Explanation.
"I shot for the purpose of killing the man. I had become tired of riding over the cobblestones to the jail every day to guard the life of such a cur as Gutten, so I made up my mind several days ago to kill him. This evening I loaded my rifle before I left the Arsenal, and as soon as I reached the jail went to the window where Gutten was sitting, waiting, gazing for my arrival. I just fired, and that is all there is about it." Members of Mason's company say that he has always borne a splendid character for industry, sobriety and peacefulness, but that he acts strangely at times and is peculiar.

Was Learned at the Jail.
At an early hour this morning a Critic reporter was dispatched to the jail to learn additional facts concerning the shooting. The prisoner has not as yet been removed from the quarters he has occupied, but it is probable that General Crocker will make some provision to-day for his removal to another cell in another part of the building. It is very evident that Mason contemplated shooting Gutten some time since, and while doing duty in the jail studied the location of the prisoner's cell that he might bring down his game without endangering the life of any one else.

There are no other prisoners confined in the cells in the corridor in which Gutten's cell is located, therefore there was no danger of Mason's bullet piercing the body of an innocent person.
Soon after Mason fired his shot an additional story was placed on the outside of the jail, not far from the spot where Mason stood when he fired at Gutten. No one is allowed to go within a hundred yards of the jail, unless on business. The jail officials say that Gutten is they ever saw. He lies about the most trivial things. Capt. McGilvray entered the cell of the miserable wretch soon after the shooting, and Gutten, while explaining the position he was in when the shot was fired, told three or four different stories, none of which were believed by the captain. Capt. McGilvray thinks Gutten is a lying scoundrel, or lying upon his bed, and not standing at the window, as he stated.

Last night was not a pleasant one for the assassin. The guards say they do not believe he slept a wink all night. Shortly after the shooting he cried out to a passing guard and asked if a soldier fired the shot. The assassin's curiosity, of course, was not gratified and he was left to form his own impressions.

Gutten's Terror.
The wretch did not occupy his bed the whole night, but lay in an outstretched position on the floor, and at times very frightened. The guards and army officers at the jail all believe that Gutten thinks the President is dead, and that he himself is soon to be assassinated. He would frequently cry out last night for the Lord to have mercy upon him.

Utterances of a Guilty Conscience.
At one time he was heard to be praying, calling upon God to save him. As one of the guards was passing his cell-door, about daylight this morning, he heard him say: "Oh, God, why did I shoot the poor President? Be merciful to me, a poor, miserable assassin—the assassin of the President of a great country. I could not help it; I could not help it! The devil seduced me, and I was compelled to fire the fatal shot! Oh, Lord, if I was only out of my misery! Take me now; oh, Lord, take me now!"
During the delivery of this prayer Gutten wept bitterly.

Regret That Mason Failed.
The regret on the street to-day was of general regret that Sergeant Mason's ball missed its mark last night. Persons in official and other circles very plainly stated that they hoped that Mason would not be prosecuted. One army officer said: "I hope they will do nothing with the man. I hope he will do anything they should promote him." At the White House the shooting was the general topic of conversation. Some of those employed there regretted that Mason had made a failure, but the rest were more guided in their expressions.

What War Department Officials Say.
The War Department officials say they have nothing whatever to do with the matter of Sergeant Mason attempting to shoot Gutten. If Col. Corkhill makes a requisition for the man he can get him without opposition from the Department.

Col. Corkhill.
Col. Corkhill was asked to-day what course he intended to pursue with regard to Mason, and replied:
"Why, I know nothing about it officially. I have only seen the accounts in the morning papers. My action will depend on official information."

Anniversary of North Point.
To-day is the 12th of September, the anniversary of the battle of North Point, but neither the Associated Survivors of the war of 1812, the Washington Light Infantry nor any other organization here made any public celebration, as was formerly the custom. The illness of Major Simms, president of the Survivors' Association, prevented any display by that organization.

Notable Sayings of Notable Men.

"The sword is mightier than the pen," Jack Heath.

"I am from the Catskill Mountains, sir," C. Teeling.

"Two better; what have you got? A sigh here,"—Francis Bealer.

"Let me see one of the above location, then go to sea again,"—Ken Billy.

"I had a most glorious time, and went all over Europe,"—Chas. A. Walter.

"I can sell more garden truck in less time than any man in the market,"—Joe Seips.

"Don't put my name in that Critic again; everybody sees it,"—Mike Homiller.

"Some men who think themselves great guns are nothing but big boys,"—Major Hammenau.

"Seeing mad, suffering much and studying much are the three pillars of learning,"—Chas. Lowe.

"If there is one thing I like more than another it is a fifteen-cent cocktail. Please concoct me another Leannard,"—Andrew Kelley.

"I've got my nephew here from Sharmany. In two years I retired from business and I makes him sole bobrieter,"—Ed. Piepenbrink.

"If I were District Commissioner, I would have Pennsylvania avenue southeast, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, paved,"—Horatio Browning.

"The Rifles won't go to Yorktown because they would call us Cornwallis' Guard. You see we wear the British regulation uniform,"—Lieut. Jas. F. Oyster.

"Although my journey at the 'Cape' has tanned me very much, I will make the boys feel very badly when they see my darling, dippy little hat,"—French Queen.

"The three-card monte men got hold of me in front of the Astor House, but I turned them over to the police. They thought I was a country chicken,"—Justice Walter.

East Washington Post-Office.
East Washington will have its postal station after all. To-day Mrs. Mary D. Bradley tendered the first floor of the house Third and East Capitol streets to the Post-office, free of rent, for the purpose of a postal station, from the 1st of October, 1881, to the 1st of June, 1882, pending which time Congress will no doubt make some special appropriation for the East Washington station. The contract was drawn up to-day between the Post-office Department and Mrs. Bradley, and will probably be signed to-morrow.

Alleged Dishonest Drivers.
Andrew A. Wiedon, a driver of a Herdic coach, was charged this morning in the Police Court by S. G. Eberly, superintendent of the company, on three separate charges of petty larceny, consisting of taking money and tickets from the cash-box of his coach by means of a duplicate key. A number of other drivers, it is said, will be tried for this charge on the 16th instant, and Wiedon's case was postponed until that date.

Rescued From Drowning.
Yesterday Police Sergeant Riley and a number of other gentlemen went down the river on the yacht Henrietta. On returning at night the party were caught in the stormy off of Alexandria and had to put in there. The night was very dark and William Dorsey, one of the party, accidentally fell overboard and barely escaped drowning. Sergeant Riley bravely jumped in after the drowning man and rescued him after much difficulty.

A Noted Divorce Case.
In the case of William Hughes vs. Ellen Hughes, Mr. J. B. Sweet, counsel for plaintiff, to-day filed an amended bill, in which it is charged that defendant "did on the 25th of December, 1876, at house No. 1351 D street northwest, and at various other times, commit adultery with John McGarvey." In the original bill the charge of adultery was not preferred for the sake of the children, as is alleged by the counsel for plaintiff, Major Sweet.

Cracklings for "The Critic."
Kidwell's flats are a great nuisance, but some ladies say there are infinitely worse ones right here in the city.

A CARD.

We desire, in few and plain-spoken words, to communicate the position of our already established house. We have for the past three years been doing business at the southeast corner of Seventh and D streets (Wash. B. Williams' Building). We particularly wish to impress our patrons and the public with the fact that the undersigned have, since the very opening of the above location, been sole owners and proprietors, but known and conducted under a different name. Now, what we wish to say is this: That every dollar's worth of clothing sold during that time has been of our own manufacture, and we shall continue keeping the same class of goods in our new establishment. We do not say they are the best-made garments to be found anywhere, and that we sell cheaper than anyone else, but we do assert that there are none to excel in style and workmanship, and no one able to sell lower.

We never exaggerate, giving invariably to each customer the value of his purchase, and in every instance return money where goods are not satisfactory.

Our One-Price System, which we so strictly enforced, will be one of the principal features in conducting our business.

We occupy the entire building. Every floor, fully one hundred feet deep, stocked with an attractive and varied line of good goods only, in order to maintain our excellent reputation as sole manufacturers of high grade Clothing for Men's, Youths', Boys' and Children's wear.

In our Tailoring Department we constantly keep foreign and domestic productions. Thanking you most kindly for past patronage, and anticipating a share in the future, we are, very respectfully,
